The combination of these offerings creates an environment where teachers and students have what they need in one place. Users can access the content libraries in the classroom or at home, and each resource includes lessons and assessments aligned to curriculum standards. Teachers maintain full control over how the modular, click-and-drag materials are used in their unique classroom.

"This was the first time in a long time where I saw something and was like 'this is amazing.' If you want teachers to be better teachers, you need to give them the material so they can focus on teaching. The [D2L Adventure digital resources] are the best thing I've seen in my teaching experience."

Naomi Weller, Teacher with the Hamilton-Wentworth District School Board
